·Upon my honour, sir, I am unable to answer your question with any degree of precision, as I committed my watch to the trusteeship of the deep; for the precious metals, however they may contribute to keep a man's head above water on the Royal Exchange, have a marvellously antibuoyant tendency on the Atlantic. Besides, to let you into a secret, I had at that particular juncture, a strong impression that time and I had very nearly done with each other.?

And may I inquire, then, by what miracle you escaped? But no miracle at all, sir, but by simply waiting until the tide turned, when the vessel was left nigh and dry upon the sand; and I took the opportunity of stepping on shore.'

*Upon my word,' exclaimed another of the and ignorance of the coast? Oh. 10! I never saw any thing better managed in my life; and nothing but at most inti-mate acquaintance with the seas could have him to run her upon the only rock whi h was to be found within ten leagues of the spot.'

*And do you think the captain and his crew

I have no reason to doubt it, for they chose a fine day and a fair wind for the excursion. Besides, I saw the captain, ix months after, at New York, in high feather, living away, en prince, at one of the principal hotels in the

During this dialogue, Gideon, who found the young gentlemen so well informed on the subject under discussion as to render any explanation from himself superfluous, took an opportunity of with-drawing, leaving the mat-ter entirely in the hands of the underwriters. The latter worthies held a consultation, con tinued by three several adjournments, which ended on the fourth day, in their obtaining a warrant for Gideon's apprehension. He, how-over, having only his own safety to consult, had availed himself of certain paper wings, which he kept in his pocket book, and had sailed from Gravesend, with a fair wind, on his passage, to join the captain, just three days before the arrival of his officer in pur-

CIRCULATING LIBRARY. THE Proprietor of this work, anxious to gra-tify his readers to as great an extent as his means will allow, respectfully announces to the public that the very liberal patronage he has received has enabled him to add a new feature to this periodical, which he believes cannot fail O prove interesting and valuable.
THE JOURNAL OF BELLES LETTRES, embrac-of new books, from the weekly and monthly periodical prees of London, &c. These reviews periodical press of London, &C. Interest will be carefully selected with reference both to imparting correct information respecting such new books as are reprinted in America, and to convey literary intelligence in regard to works which rarely find their way, across the Atlantic. As great exertions will be used to make this department instructive and entertaining, the proprietor is confident that it will be considered an important addition, by means quently avoid the expense of purchasing such their titles or the reputation of their authors will sell the edition. This part of the Journal will embrace a considerable amount of extracts from new books of travels, memoirs, biography. novels, and in fact present a bird's eye view of new publications, early diffused through the Union, by means of the facilities of mail trans-

The London Literary Gazette will be culled for this purpose, while the "Critical Notices," of the London Metropolitan, the Monthly New Monthly, the Gentleman's, Blackwood's Tait's, Edinburgh, Fraser's, and other Maga zines, already regularly received by the editor, will be freely used.

2. Varieties, embracing literary anecdotes.

3. A regular list of the new books published and in progress in London and America

4. Occasional original notices of new Ame rican publications, with extracts embracing fect.

No additional charge will be made for this great increase of reading matter. It will be contained on the pages of the cover of the Library, and therefore subject subscribers who receive their numbers by mail to no additional Saint-Mary's County Court Acting a expense of postage.

Several applications having been made to ascertain the manner in which the original department of notices of new books will be con lucted, we take the present early opportunity of stating that, at least they shall most une quivocally be-UNBOUGHT. The presenta tion of a copy by the publisher shall not be a passport to praise, when the merits of the work do not warrant it; so that our readers may be assured of two things: First-books shall not be noticed the next day after they are received; and, secondly, they shall not be reviewed be fore they have been read. We have no royal road to puffing, and will be the less likely, therefore, to fall into the error of an unlucky wight, who, in his anxiety to be the first to blow the state of M the bellows of criticism, read the preface unly day of Septemb of a duodecimo, and gravely entered his up-probation of two chapters which, unfortunately for his critical acumen, had been omitted, while he prefatory reference to them had been, by mistake, retained! This predicament was worse than that of the London editor, who criticised some passages of Cooke's acting, and found when he rose next morning, and his paper was all over London, that the play had been postponed. For the rest, time must develope our course and our capabilities; in cases where the usual courtesy of the trade is not extended to this journal, unlike most of our cotemporaries, we in arrears for Taxes, he gives this notice, in specimen of its future promise.
